Cards Against Identity

A card game expansion for horrible identity professionals.

All Canadians can now use _____ to authenticate.

The data leak included _____ but fortunately not _____.

PICK 2

Article 27(b)(c)(iii) of our privacy policy includes

_____.

Security through

_____.

After five gruelling years, we finally have an RFC for _____.

_____ is the new perimeter.

What got invented 40 years ago that we're just now re-discovering?

What are people using to outwit public facial recognition?

What is the hot new DID method based on?

The most common answer to a security question this year was

_____.

WS-_____.

Interoperability.

Zero-knowledge proofs.

A six-year-old with a smart phone.

A reverse-reverse proxy.

Personally identifiable information.

A permissioned-ish ledger.

Storing passwords in plain text.

An early XML draft signed by Eve Maler.

‹xmlgrrl/›

Clicking "OK" without reading the consent screen.

The Nazgûl.

Laura Hunter's murder-walk.

****

The right to be forgotten.

Turning off encryption to make everything work.

A bigger, blacker DID.

Cards Against Identity
Deep learning.

Yet another data breach.

Cyber hoodies.

"Consent".

Rejecting a password for being too complex.

One of Aaron Parecki's weird cats.

Breach corpuses.

Realizing only too late that you didn't actually need the blockchain.

Bearer tokens.